5 Things We're Talking About this week!

1/ There's a new Joker in Gotham

Joaquin Phoenix revealed his creepy take on the Batman villain in a teaser for Joker, out Oct. 4. With an It sequel also on the way, it's not a good year for clown-phobics.

2/ Heinz releases Kranch dressing

Yes, Americans will put ranch dressing on anything—even ketchup! This combo sauce eliminates double-dipping.

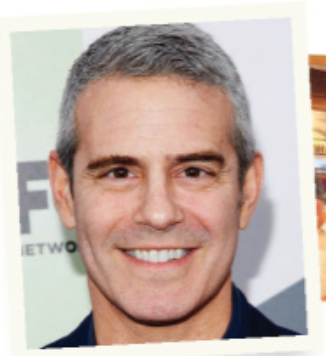

3/ Chrissy Teigen and John Legend get matching tattoos

"We are a cool tattoo family now," declared Teigen as she revealed that she and her husband got each other's names and those of their kids Luna, 3, and Miles, 11 months, inked on their arms.

4/ Will.i.am made music with the royal Fergie

The Black Eyed Peas star visited Sarah Ferguson, the Duchess of York, for tea—and she recited poetry over his beats. She won't replace rock star Fergie, though. Will.i.am said the session was "just for fun."

5/ Andy Cohen's baby rocks $400 Fendi pants

Benjamin, born Feb. 4, dressed to impress when he met up with his dad's pal Mark Consuelos (right), who called the newborn "a straight up G with those pants."

Her Private Battle
"Her dad being sick has just been so rough for her," an insider says of Spears (in 2016 and, inset, with Jamie in 2015). "Jamie is such a wonderful dad."

Britney Seeks Treatment Amid Dad's Health Crisis

When Britney Spears posted an empowering quote—"Fall in love with taking care of yourself, mind, body, spirit"—to her Instagram on April 3 with a caption referencing taking "me time," it represented something far more personal than just advice for her fans. The same day a source revealed to People that the pop icon, 37, checked herself into a facility for "all-encompassing wellness treatment." As her father, Jamie, continues to recover from a life-threatening colon rupture in November 2018, "Britney just needed to focus on herself," says a source close to the Spears family. "Her dad being sick has taken a toll on her. They're so close, and it has been a lot."

While gearing up for a return >>

Her Love
Spears and Sam Asghari (in November) have been linked since 2016.

Mama's Boys

to the Las Vegas strip with a new residency, Spears announced in January she was taking an indefinite break from work to support her father following his emergency surgery. "It's important to always put your family first.... That's the decision I had to make," Spears tweeted at the time. "We're all so grateful that he came out of it alive, but he still has a long road ahead of him." Jamie, 66, has had legal control over Spears's financial and health decisions as her conservator since her mental-health crisis in 2008. He underwent a second surgery in March, and an insider says that worrying about her father made Spears "physically ill" and affected her eating and fitness regimen. "Before he got sick, Britney was doing extremely well," says the insider, adding that Spears is "very happy" with the life she shares with her sons—Sean Preston, 13, and Jayden James, 12—and her model boyfriend Sam Asghari, 25.

While she gets treatment, the boys are staying with their father, Spears's ex-husband Kevin Federline, 41. "Britney and Kevin always had their issues, but he is good with the boys," says the insider. "As a mom, she knows she has to get better."

Her Ex Speaks Out

Spears and Kevin Federline (below) finalized their divorce in 2007 and share custody of their sons. "Kevin commends Britney for recognizing that she needs to take a step back and that she is taking reasonable steps to deal with her situation in a responsible way," Federline's lawyer Mark Vincent Kaplan told Entertainment Tonight. "He wishes everyone well."

Jeff Bezos' $36 Billion Divorce Settlement

Amazon founder Jeff Bezos, 55, is still the richest man in the world—and now his ex-wife Mackenzie is the third richest woman. In their April 4 divorce settlement, Mackenzie, 49, exits the marriage with 25 percent (at press time, worth $36 billion) of the couple's Amazon stock. The two, who wed in 1993 and didn't have a prenup, said they plan on being friendly co-parents to their four kids. Meanwhile Bezos's new girlfriend, former TV host Lauren Sanchez, 49, and her husband, agent Patrick Whitesell, 54, filed for divorce on April 5. Bezos and Sanchez "are in love," a source says. College Admissions Scandal Update

Felicity Huffman to Plead Guilty

Facing Justice
"My desire to help my daughter is no excuse to break the law," stated Huffman (leaving court in Boston April 3).

Less than a month after Felicity Huffman was handcuffed at gunpoint during an FBI raid on her Los Angeles home, the Desperate Housewives star was among 14 defendants who agreed to plead guilty on April 8 to involvement in the massive college admissions cheating scandal. "I am in full acceptance of my guilt, and with deep regret and shame over what I have done, I accept full responsibility for my actions," she said in a statement. One of 33 parents indicted, Huffman, 56, is charged with mail fraud for allegedly paying William "Rick" Singer, the scam's mastermind, to have a proctor secretly correct her daughter Sofia Grace's SAT answers after she took the test. "My daughter knew absolutely nothing about my actions, and in my misguided and profoundly wrong way, I have betrayed her," continued Huffman, who is requesting a zero to six-month sentence (the maximum is 20 years). "This transgression toward her and the public I will carry for the rest of my life." Huffman's husband, actor William H. Macy, 69, wasn't charged because only Huffman was caught on tape by the FBI talking about the scheme. "I am ashamed of the pain I have caused my daughter, my family, my friends, my colleagues and the educational community," she said. "I want to apologize to them and, especially, I want to apologize to the students who work hard every day to get into college, and to their parents who make tremendous sacrifices to support their children and do so honestly." —EMILY STROHM

'I ACCEPT FULL RESPONSIBILITY FOR MY ACTIONS AND WILL ACCEPT THE CONSEQUENCES' —FELICITY HUFFMAN

Lori Loughlin's Family Drama

Fuller House star Lori Loughlin and her fashion-designer husband, Mossimo Giannulli, are also both charged in the scandal but hadn't entered a plea at press time. While the actress, 54, has been in good spirits in public—even signing autographs for fans before the couple's court appearance in Boston on April 3—a family source says it's a different story behind closed doors. "She is trying to keep it all together, but she is very stressed out. This is probably the first time ever she has been in a situation that won't get fixed or disappear quickly." Loughlin and Giannulli, 55, allegedly paid $500,000 to get their daughters Isabella, 20, and Olivia Jade, 19, into the University of Southern California under the false pretense that they were crew athletes. Loughlin, who has been dropped by Hallmark Channel, "has a very strong faith that is helping her immensely," says another insider. Meanwhile, Olivia, a social media influencer with more than 1.4 million Instagram followers, is "distraught and embarrassed," says the family source. "Olivia had her own life and business.... She didn't really care about school." She and her sister haven't returned to USC. The source says of the family, "Right now they are just focused on getting through this ordeal." —E.S.

Date Night

Brian Austin Green & Megan Fox

The actor, 45, and actress, 32, cozied up on a rare public outing April 2 in L.A. The couple—who share sons Noah, 6, Bodhi, 5, and Journey, 2—wed in 2010; Fox filed for divorce in 2015, but they reconciled the next year and have kept a low profile since.

Going Strong

Rami Malek & Lucy Boynton

The Oscar winner, 37, and his 25-year-old Bohemian Rhapsody costar—who fell in love while filming the Queen biopic—were all smiles at an April 7 Mets game in Queens.

Khloé Kardashian

Motherhood & Moving On

Model Baby "She's a ham!" Kardashian says of True, who appears in the new campaign for Good American's summer collection.

Like many moms, Khloé Kardashian can barely fathom how time flies—her baby girl is already a year old. But little True's April 12 birthday brings a joyful end to a year during which Kardashian, 34, also split from boyfriend Tristan Thompson, 28, following two rounds of cheating allegations. Now the Good American clothing-brand founder says she's focused on the future—and not letting negativity get her down.

Can you believe True is 1? It's so special. But it's scary and sad because it goes so fast. Can we slow down time?

How is she on-camera? She's really comfortable! We do Gymboree and art class, and she loves when everyone is staring at her. And I'm always clapping for her. What am I creating?

Your Good American line celebrates all body types: Why is that important to you? I don't want anybody to be a cookie-cutter shape or size. And not everybody wants to be a size 2! I want people to live a healthy and happy life, and that's the message I want to project to my daughter.

When do you feel best? I feel really good working out. But we all have areas on our bodies that we want to perfect. We're our own worst critics.

'MOTHERHOOD IS TIRING, BUT YOU FIGURE IT OUT. I REALLY FEEL I WAS MADE TO DO THIS' —KHLOE KARDASHIAN

How do you stay positive? Life can get really heavy. Not every day is rainbows. But that's real life. It's okay to fail. Just don't let those bad things define you. —AILI NAHAS

How Marsai Martin Became Hollywood's New Teen Queen

She's known to millions as the kid sister on ABC's black-ish. But Marsai Martin, 14, is only getting started. The Texan has her own company, Genius Productions, and a development deal with Universal Studios. That makes her the youngest person in recent memory to sign such a deal in Hollywood, and she's already got something to show for it: the new comedy Little (see page 38). The movie follows a mogul (Regina Hall) who is transformed into a kid version of herself, played by Martin. She's an executive producer now, but back in 2014 Martin had done one major TV ad when she landed her black-ish part. Despite her youth, the star—whose folks, Joshua and Carol, help run Genius—sounds like a veteran. "You're going to get a lot more noes than yeses," she says. "Being yourself is all that you need. It doesn't matter what age you are, it's never too late to do what you love."

—CHRISTINA DUGAN

"I'm taking it one step at a time," says Martin (with Little costar Issa Rae, right).

UPS driver snaps the pups on his route—and charms the Internet

NEW ORLEANS

For a lot of deliverymen, dogs are just a hazard of the business. But for UPS driver Jason Hardesty, the pups on his regular route have made him an Internet sensation. Two years ago Hardesty, 30, snapped a photo with a customer's dog and posted it on Instagram. When it gained attention, he kept going—posting weekly pics with the canines he meets on the job. "I get to know the customer and the dogs," says Hardesty, who's been driving for about seven years and now has more than 63,000 followers. "People are standing on the corner with their dogs, waiting to see if I'll take a photo!" he says. "I didn't expect this, but it's nice to know I'm making other people feel good."

Hardesty (with Prince) says, "I see 30-50 dogs a day."

Why I Care
PERSONAL STORIES ABOUT GIVING BACK

Before I was thinking about having my own family, I was introduced to the magnitude of this issue. Lack of access to safe water to drink kills 1 million people every year. For Americans there's clean water everywhere. So that's always the first hurdle—just trying to explain to people that this is a massive problem. Water.org's mission is to provide safe water to the world through access to small, affordable loans for taps and toilets. The water crisis disproportionately affects women and girls. As I travel around the world and see so many girls going on water collections, it affects me in a personal way. I now have four beautiful daughters [Alexia, 20, Isabella, 12, Gia, 10, and Stella, 8, with wife Luciana], and it becomes more unconscionable that parts of the world are still grappling with this. Our partnership with Stella Artois has helped provide access to clean water for more than 1.7 million people in the developing world with a goal of reaching 3.5 million people by 2020. We're hoping for an even better decade coming up. —REPORTED BY MAGGIE PARKER

TV | Les Misérables

This new version brings home the power of the French classic

DRAMA Victor Hugo realized he was onto something big with Les Misérables—his advance for the 1862 masterpiece was a whopping 300,000 francs, or close to $4 million in modern American currency. If he'd known his epic would also become a huge musical in the following century and earn Anne Hathaway an Oscar singing "I Dreamed a Dream," he would have demanded even more. This bold, stirring Masterpiece production—which has no musical numbers—gives us a whirling melodrama of improbable coincidences that, nonetheless, is always believably grounded in Hugo's faith in political liberty and moral redemption. You could have a comb with a million teeth, and still you wouldn't find a single grain of cynicism. Dominic West (The Affair) is the great, heroic Jean Valjean, the former convict pursued across more than a thousand pages by the relentless Inspector Javert (Selma's David Oyelowo). Lily Collins is hapless Fantine, ground down by cruelty—her decline and fall are punishing to watch. (She sells her front teeth to support her child Cosette.) They play these immortal characters on a human scale without being dwarfed by the monumental story. (PBS, April 14, check local listings)

LOOKOUT POINT/MASTERPIECE

Zoe Saldana

Hugh Jackman

MOVIE | Missing Link

Bigfoot makes great strides in this family adventure

ANIMATED Sir Lionel Frost (Hugh Jackman), an explorer eager for renown, has found just the ticket—an English-speaking Bigfoot (Zach Galifianakis) who prefers to be called Susan. But Frost, teamed up with another explorer's widow (Zoe Saldana), has even grander prospects: Susan, whose anxious smile and eyes suggest the late Garry Shandling, would like to meet his relatives, the yeti. They live in the neighborhood of Shangri-La. Link has lots of small, nicely observed gags and several terrific action sequences, including one that has Frost and an assassin slapping each other silly while hanging over what is known as a yawning chasm. The film, though, is yawnless. (April 12, PG)

Zach Galifianakis

Saldana, Jackman and Galifianakis provide the voices.

MUSIC | Jackie Evancho, The Debut

POP The 19-year-old singer's eighth album is a dreamy collection of ballads from modern Broadway musicals, among them "Requiem" (Dear Evan Hansen) and "Burn" (Hamilton). A standout: Anastasia's "Once Upon a December," which has a touch of Enya's hushed mysteriousness. (April 12)

Schoenaerts learns some horse sense.

MOVIE | The Mustang

DRAMA Roman (Matthias Schoenaerts) is a prisoner working in a program to tame wild horses. He names his horse Marquis—a notion he picks up reading an equestrian magazine. (He pronounces it "Marcus.") Mustang is a quiet movie that allows you to mull over big poetic themes without trying to knock you off the saddle. (In theaters, R)

Q&A

Natalie Morales

The actress, 34, stars in NBC's Abby's, a sitcom about San Diego's best backyard bar.

Abby's* has been described as a new Cheers—is that a lot of pressure?

We're totally fine with that comparison. There are a lot of hospital shows out there—we need another bar show!

Morales with the cast of her new NBC sitcom.

You identify as queer, and Abby is the first openly bisexual character on a network show—that's quite a breakthrough.

I think it's really huge, and I like that they're portraying her that way. But I'm excited it's not the main focus of the show. We're all multi-faceted people.

Are you and the cast drinking real beer while filming?

No! But we've been known to hook up a real keg during an afterparty or two.

MOVIE | Teen Spirit

DRAMA Who knew Elle Fanning had such a big voice? In this British film the actress shows off incredible musical chops as Violet, a girl who tries to change her bleak life when a singing competition comes to her town. With the help of a former opera singer, now an alcoholic (Zlatko Buric), Violet makes it to the finals—but despite a poppy soundtrack with hits by Ellie Goulding and Robyn, there's a darker spirit here than you'd expect to find in a movie about some kid's dreams coming true. (April 12, PG-13)

Fanning plays a small-town girl with a huge talent.

Reversal of fortune: Rae and Martin.

MOVIE | Little

COMEDY Jordan Sanders (Regina Hall), the meanest boss in all of Atlanta, is magically transformed—very much against her will—into her prior, 13-year-old self (black-ish star Marsai Martin). Making matters worse, she's forced to hand over her business to her assistant April (Issae Rae), while returning to the miserable middle-school she attended on the first go-round. Little is a cute vehicle for Martin, although you find yourself missing Hall—her brassy blasts of anger are over-the-top funny. (April 12, PG-13)

Laura Marano and Centineo

NETFLIX | The Perfect Date

COMEDY Heartthrob-of-the-moment Noah Centineo plays Brooks Rattigan, a high school senior who rents himself out as the ideal teen companion—click on his app, and he'll take you to the prom, coach you on how to talk to the opposite sex, even fill in as a last-minute tennis partner. This lighthearted rom-com is careful to make clear that Brooks is not a male escort, gigolo or anything naughty. Aren't you ashamed for wondering? (Launches April 12)

A self-proclaimed "man-child," the 38-year-old felt right at home playing a 14-year-old in a superhero's body. Emotionally, anyway. TV | Bless This Mess

COMEDY Rio and Mike (Lake Bell and Dax Shepard) leave behind New York City for fresh pastures—a farm he inherited. But the old homestead needs a reno, and the soil is probably barren. On paper this promising series sounds like a new take on the classic sitcom Green Acres, but in tone it's closer to Albert Brooks's shrewd 1985 movie Lost in America. Rio and Mike are urban rubes. Molly Shannon

The Saturday Night Live alum, 54, stars as poet Emily Dickinson in the new period comedy Wild Nights with Emily

This film portrays Dickinson, often depicted as reclusive, as a gutsy lesbian. Was that fun to play?
It was so cool. And it's timely because she was going up against the male establishment.

The Best New Books

Two powerful stories about the intensity of young love, plus a charming and vividly rendered historical novel

Edited by Kim Hubbard

book of the week

Sally Rooney
Normal People

NOVEL

The author of 2017's bestselling Conversations with Friends is back with a stunning novel about the transformative power of relationships. Raised by a single mother, Connell is the quiet star of the high school in his Irish town, while wealthy, idiosyncratic Marianne is an outcast. His mom cleans her family's house, setting up a complex social dynamic for the duo's on-and-off romance, which continues through college. Shatteringly honest yet wildly romantic, this is a story of misses, mistakes and unlikely resilience. You might just finish it in a single sitting.

Susan Choi
Trust Exercise

NOVEL

Sarah and David, theater kids at a performing-arts high school in the 1980s, are nearly as enthralled with their charismatic teacher Mr. Kingsley as they are with each other. Then this electrifying account of messy first love leaps forward in time, upending memories and the reliability of more than one narrator. A #MeToo story that cuts to the heart of gender politics and the teacher-student dynamic.

Martha Hall Kelly
Lost Roses

NOVEL

Devastated by her husband's death, New York socialite Eliza Ferriday throws herself into helping the city's newly arrived White Russian refugees on the eve of WWI. It's not just a distraction, it's personal: Eliza's friend Sofya and godson are caught up in Russia's violent regime change. Based on true events, this prequel to the author's Lilac Girls transports.

HARRY & WILLIAM

SEPARATE

LIVES

AS THEIR WORK, FAMILIES AND PERSONALITIES TAKE THEM IN DIFFERENT DIRECTIONS, THE BROTHERS' RELATIONSHIP HAS COME UNDER STRAIN, SAY THOSE CLOSE TO THEM

By SIMON PERRY

Distinct Roles, Different Styles
Harry (in London on April 3) loves bonding with children on outings; William (knighting Ringo Starr on March 20) carries out formal duties on behalf of Queen Elizabeth. "It makes sense to create separate identities," says royal historian Robert Lacey.

A little more than a year ago, with anticipation building for the May wedding of Meghan Markle and Prince Harry, the pair took the stage at a Royal Foundation charity forum alongside Prince William and Princess Kate to announce a new working partnership among the foursome. "Working together as a family, do you ever have disagreements about things?" asked moderator Tina Daheley. After a few moments of nervous shuffling and laughter, William responded, "Oh, yes." Harry then joked that the clashes "come so thick and fast." Had they been resolved? "We don't know," William said, seemingly jokingly.

The high-profile appearance would be the first time the two couples would publicly join forces, and it may be the last. A partnership that started off full of promise—the forum "summed up the whole idea of the family working together," Royal Foundation CEO Lorraine Heggessey said at the time—has since crumbled. Today the quartet don't share an office, a palace or even an Instagram page. The split culminated with Meghan and Harry moving to Windsor's Frogmore Cottage—some 25 miles away from the palace home they once shared with William, 36, and Kate, 37—and marks the end of an era for the royal brothers, who were once exceedingly close. Palace insiders brush off the shakeup as a natural progression of adult siblings and a chance for Harry, 34, and Meghan, 37, to escape the "claustrophobic" life of Kensington Palace. "It's very important for Prince Harry and Meghan to flower and create a new direction," says royal historian Robert Lacey. And as William focuses on his role as the future King—Queen Elizabeth turns 93 on April 21; Prince Charles is 70—he and Harry are inherently set upon diverging roads. "This is a future-proofing exercise," a member of their team says about dividing the Sussex and Cambridge "courts."

'It's very important for Harry and Meghan to flower and create a new direction'
—ROBERT LACEY

But multiple sources tell People that there's more to it than that, and that there have been deep tensions between the brothers—stretching back to when Harry first told his family he wanted to marry Meghan early in the relationship. Sitting down with Harry, William cautioned his brother that things were moving too quickly, a source says, leaving Harry angry and hurt. (The idea that William and Kate were unfriendly to Meghan, though, doesn't "sound like them," says a friend of both brothers.)

What has now become clear is that tensions—understandable whenever someone new enters any family dynamic—had been building for some time leading up to the wedding. For mom-of-three Kate, caring for newborn baby Louis caused some strain, just as Meghan was adjusting to the confines of royal life. And as the Sussexes bumped up against palace obstacles while launching their own work, Meghan's frustrations have been evident to insiders. "Harry is very protective and quite rightly so," says one household source. "The royal household can be like that. It must be a real culture shock for her."

Of course, the brothers still attend formal events together—most recently April 4, when they joined dad Charles to support their shared passion for conservation at the premiere of the Netflix documentary Our Planet. But outside such appearances, they don't spend much time together and have separate groups of friends. "They are at very different situations in their lives," says a close family friend.

For those who remember the brothers' clear bond as children—and in the wake of the 1997 death of their mother, Princess Diana—the current distance between them is heartbreaking. "They got great comfort from each other when their mother died," says the family friend. In the two decades since, William has gravitated toward his grandmother for lessons in how to conduct himself publicly as monarch-in-waiting. (Most recently he made headlines for a brief undercover stint with U.K. spy agencies.) Harry, who leads with his instincts, sees his older brother as being hemmed in by protocol and a path that is preset, say sources. But despite their very different roles and work styles, longtime palace courtiers had the "homogeneous idea" of the two princes working in tandem. "It was only going to work until they married—and it went on a while longer than perhaps was originally thought," one now concedes. But they have lost something by dividing. "It's a shame," says the household source. "There was power in that unity and great strength in the foursome, but I see why it is happening. There is always that tension: trying to do the PR thing and then realizing that they are just real people. They want their own place and their own things."

Still, those who know the brothers well say that the current distance between them will not last forever. "There is never any doubt that they will be there for each other 100 percent and support each other when it matters," says one insider. As life continues to evolve for both William and Harry—marriage, children, work—so too will their own relationship. "Maybe they'll come back together a little later," says the source close to the royal household. "It's another stage in the growing up. Sometimes you have to break away in order to come back." ●

Where is Timmothy Pitzen?

A CRUEL HOAX, A FAT

For 24 hours Jim Pitzen thought his son, missing for nearly 8 years, had finally been found—but it turned out to be a lie. Inside his fight to keep hope alive

By JEFF TRUESDELL

THER'S HEARTBREAK

The call Jim Pitzen had been waiting eight years to hear came shortly before noon on April 3. Someone claiming to be his son Timmothy had turned up on the street in Newport, Ky. Jim tried to keep his heart from leaping. On May 11, 2011, Timmothy's mother had taken the 6-year-old out of his Aurora, Ill., kindergarten class citing a family emergency. Three days later her body was found, dead by suicide. But Timmothy hadn't been seen since. Now detectives were on their way, and Jim couldn't keep his mind from racing ahead—to registering his only child, who would now be 14, for school, advising him on how to shave, teaching him to drive. "I thought, 'The next couple of weeks are going to be crazy,'" he says. "'I'm going to be getting my son, change my routine, get back into family mode.' It's like shift from low gear to high gear, I've got to try to get him stable and back to trusting people."

By the next day that dream was cruelly shattered once again. Rather than unraveling one of the nation's most confounding missing-child cases—in a chilling suicide note Timmothy's mother had said that the boy was "safe" with people who would care for him, but taunted, "You will never find him"—

PAINFUL TWIST

"Why would somebody portray himself as somebody he's not?" asks Jim Pitzen (right) of Brian Rini (inset), who claimed to be his son Timmothy Pitzen (far left). Timmothy vanished at age 6 and is still missing.

authorities uncovered a heartbreaking hoax. The boy on the street was actually 23-year-old Brian Rini, recently freed from an Ohio prison after serving nearly 14 months for burglary and vandalism and who had twice before claimed falsely to be a victim of child sex trafficking, according to the FBI. Only when DNA proved his identity did Rini admit he'd taken Timmothy's name after learning about his case on ABC's 20/20, police say. For Jim the revelation brought back all the overwhelming anguish he's endured since Timmothy's disappearance. "The house always feels empty after they get leads and conclude it's not Timmothy," he says. "It's just terrible; nobody should have to live with a missing child. It's just crazy how much pain and suffering goes on every day."

Rini's alleged motivation is laid out in a criminal complaint. "He wanted to get away from his own family," it says. "Questioned further, Rini stated that he wished he had a father like Timmothy's." Now jailed and facing up to eight years in prison for making false statements to a federal agent, Rini "has always been troubled," says his younger brother Jonathan, 21. "I'm so sorry he did this." Timmothy's grandmother Linda Pitzen, 71, graciously offered forgiveness to Rini's family, saying, "They have heartache too. Hopefully now he can get the help he needs." But the dashed hope, like others before it, sent Timmothy's dad reeling. "Every one, you put up a little wall or a little more armor to help you deal with it," he says. "It doesn't get any easier."

Jim imagines his son (above left, with mom Amy in April 2010 and, above right, with his dad in January '07) today as "a handsome young man just trying to make it in the world and be himself." An age-progressed image (below) shows how Timmothy may look now.

The last time Jim, 47, a designer for an engineering company, saw his son, it was when he dropped him off at school. That task usually fell to his wife, Amy, 42, but she had seemed unusually agitated and suffering from vertigo that morning, Jim says, so he drove Timmothy and Amy in the family Jeep. He remembers watching his "little man" run toward his teacher in his Spider-Man light-up shoes, then taking Amy to work before heading to his own office. But when Jim returned to pick up Timmothy later that morning, he discovered that Amy had checked the boy out just 30 minutes after he'd arrived, citing an emergency. The two then disappeared.

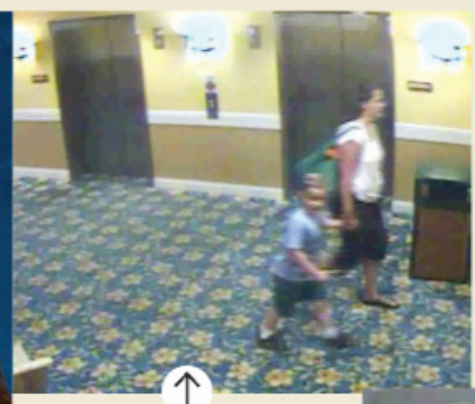

At first Jim thought Amy was just angry at him for

Timeline of a Mystery

FEBRUARY 2009

"My happier memories are teaching Tim to ride a bike, going for walks, going trick-or-treating, just doing things together," says Jim (with Timmothy's mom, Amy, when Timmothy was 4 years old). "He's just missed more every day."

MAY 11, 2011

The day Amy checked Timmothy out of school, a surveillance image shows mother and son at the Key Lime Cove indoor water-park resort 65 miles from Aurora in Gurnee, Ill., where receipts showed they spent the night.

some reason. Tension in their seven-year marriage had already led to talk of divorce; one week earlier Amy had gone on a cruise with a friend, leaving Jim and their son back at home. But when Jim still couldn't reach Amy by the next day, he filed a missing persons report. On her third day missing, Amy called police to say she wasn't missing at all and put Timmothy on the phone in a call to Jim's brother Chuck, who heard no distress. Jim later learned Amy had stopped taking her prescribed medication for depression; Amy's mom, Alana Anderson, and a friend previously told People that Amy had once attempted suicide.

'IT'S A WAITING GAME I PLAY ALL THE TIME … ON WHEN HE'S COMING HOME'
—JIM PITZEN

Jim concedes he didn't then grasp the depth of Amy's mental-health struggles and hadn't been as present in his family's life as much as he wished. Police eventually tracked mother and son to a zoo, then two overnights at indoor water-park resorts, all within 200 miles of home, before finding Amy's body in a Rockford, Ill., motel room on May 14, with self-inflicted slashes on her wrists and neck and a high level of antihistamines in her system, along with her note. "She loved that little guy so much," Jim told People in 2015. "I can't see her killing him. I just can't." But what did she do with Timmothy? "I'm waiting for the answer," he says.

Until then Jim surrounds himself at home with photographs, stuffed toys and remembrances of a child he believes is growing up. After Timmothy vanished, Jim found living in the family's Aurora home—with Timmothy's unfinished backyard tree house—to be too painful, so he moved back to his hometown of Clinton, Iowa. "I still look for a little kid, waist-high, blondish-brown hair with a little funny walk, even though I know he's going to have to be 6-ft. tall somewhere," Jim says. An age-progressed photo from the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children showing what Timmothy might look like today is tacked to Jim's fridge beside Timmothy's preschool artwork. Jim's now been without Timmothy for longer than they were together. But he hasn't given up. "My son is still out there somewhere needing to come home to his family," he says. "Eventually he'll find me."

ANOTHER LOOK
"My life's all about my son," says Jim (above, in 2015 flipping through a photo book of early images compiled by Amy). "It really hasn't changed."

A young man seen on the street in Newport, Ky., looking bruised and acting scared, tells strangers that he'd been kidnapped and held for several years by two men. He says he escaped from them at a Red Roof Inn and fled across an Ohio River bridge for help. He gives his name as Timmothy Pitzen.

APRIL 4, 2019
DNA evidence confirms the young man is 23-year-old Brian Rini, recently paroled in Ohio after serving prison time for burglary and vandalism.

"It's devastating. It's like reliving that day all over again," Amy's sister Kara Jacobs (above right, with Amy's mother, Alana Anderson) tells reporters. Anderson says of Timmothy, "He's a wonderful little boy, and I hope he has the strength of personality to do whatever he needs to do to find us."

Bachelorettes Unite!

FORMER BACHELORETTES LOOK BACK ON WHAT THEY'VE LEARNED AS THEY CELEBRATE THEIR JOURNEYS TO FIND HAPPILY EVER AFTER By AILI NAHAS

JOHN FLEENOR/ABC

Sixteen years ago, on the heels of a successful debut of The Bachelor, starring Alex Michel, creator Mike Fleiss launched the ideal spinoff: A single woman—in the inaugural season, it was Michel's runner-up, Trista Rehn—would call the shots. A bona fide hit was born, and over 14 seasons, Bachelor Nation has remained captivated by the strong, determined women trying to find Mr. Right. Through it all the Bachelorette family has remained fiercely supportive of its own—and candid with millions of fans about what happens to the onscreen fairy tale when cameras stop rolling. There have been breakups, weddings, babies (18 and counting!) and plenty of joy and heartbreak. But just as viewers keep tuning in, the women—a dozen of whom came together last month for a May 6 ABC special (only season 2's Meredith Phillips and season 3's Jen Schefft opted not to participate)—remain grateful for the indelible adventure. "People still want to feel the love," says season 14's Becca Kufrin. "They really want us to find happiness—and that is amazing to see."

Trista (Rehn) Sutter, 46

Season 1 (2003)

Then: The former dancer for the Miami Heat fell hard for firefighter Ryan Sutter. Now: The Vail, Colo.-based couple recently celebrated their 15th wedding anniversary and have two children, Max, 11, and Blakesley, 10. Words of Wisdom: "Our focus is always on each other," says the self-help author. "We make our relationship a priority."

DeAnna (Pappas) Stagliano, 37

Season 4 (2008)

Then: She and Jesse Csincsak split four months after the finale aired. Now: Wed to Stephen Stagliano (whose twin, Michael, was on season 5) since 2011, the L.A.-based blogger and Moms in Cars host has two kids, Addison, 5, and Austin, 3. Words of Wisdom: "I had a terrible breakup, but everything leads you to where you're meant to be."

Ashley (Hebert) Rosenbaum, 35

Season 7 (2011)

Then: The dentist got engaged to construction manager J.P. Rosenbaum on the show; their 2012 nuptials aired on ABC. Now: The Florida-based couple have two children, son Ford, 4, and daughter Essex, 2. Words of Wisdom: "J.P. and I are lucky. We clicked right off the bat, and we were able to navigate all the hype."

Emily Maynard Johnson, 33

Season 8 (2012)

Then: After a brief engagement to season 15 Bachelor star Brad Womack, the single mom found love with Jef Holm, but they split three months after the finale. Now: She lives in North Carolina with Tyler, her husband of nearly five years, and four children: Ricki, 13, Jennings, 3, Gibson, 2, and Gatlin, 17 months. Words of Wisdom: "The show gave me such a clear vision of what I wanted. And I know I was put on this earth to be a mom."

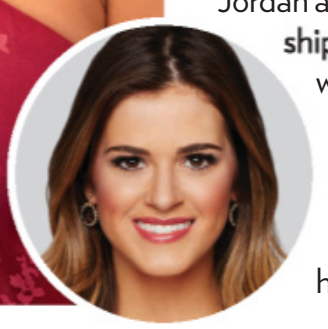

Kaitlyn Bristowe, 33

Season 11 (2015)

Then: The fun-loving favorite got engaged to personal trainer Shawn Booth. Now: After three years together they split last fall. Bristowe, who hosts the Off the Vine podcast, lives in Nashville and is dating Bachelorette alum Jason Tartick, who competed on Becca Kufrin's season. Words of Wisdom: "Since the show, I learned to be more self-aware and vulnerable. Of course I have regrets, but it's been the most beautiful whirlwind."

JoJo Fletcher, 28

Season 12 (2016)

Then: The real estate developer had an instant connection with former pro football player Jordan Rodgers. Now: Engaged for three years, Fletcher and Rodgers are living together in Dallas and cohost a YouTube series, Engaged with JoJo and Jordan. Words of Wisdom: "Once the cameras turned off, Jordan and I had our relationship to ourselves. We went through a tough first year, but it was a growing experience. We just love being around each other—he's my best friend."

Jillian Harris, 39

Season 5 (2009)

Then: The Canada native fell for tech consultant Ed Swiderski, but the engagement was called off a year later. Now: The blogger and TV host has two children, Leo, 2, and Annie, 6 months, with partner Justin Pasutto. Words of Wisdom: "It can be difficult to have millions of people comment on your personal decisions. I'm much more confident now."

Ali Fedotowsky-Manno, 34

Season 6 (2010)

Then: She got engaged to her pick, Roberto Martinez, but they split 18 months later. Now: Wed to radio host Kevin Manno since 2017, the blogger has two kids: Molly, 2, and Riley, 11 months. Words of Wisdom: "All of us Bachelorettes are on a group text. It's like we're sisters."

Desiree (Hartsock) Siegfried, 33

Season 9 (2013)

Then: The bridal designer got engaged to poetry-reciting mortgage banker Chris Siegfried. Now: Married for four years, the couple have two sons, Asher, 2, and Zander, 3 months. Words of Wisdom: "I used to be very reserved, but The Bachelorette forced me to open up," says Siegfried, who shares honest moments from motherhood on her Instagram account. "I'm tired of seeing this picture-perfect world on social media!"

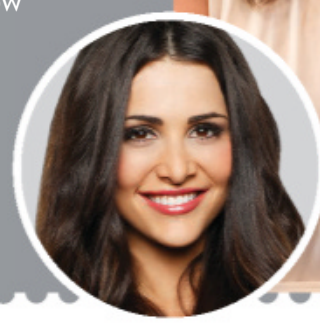

Andi Dorfman, 32

Season 10 (2014)

Then: The outspoken attorney got engaged to former baseball player Josh Murray. Now: Following a painful split from Murray eight months after the finale, Dorfman moved to N.Y.C. and has written two successful memoirs. Words of Wisdom: "I wanted to prove that I could find love and be a show success story, but sometimes it's just not there," says Dorfman, who is single and dating. "Lesson learned!"

Rachel Lindsay, 34

Season 13 (2017)

Then: The attorney fell in love and got engaged to chiropractor Bryan Abasolo. Now: Lindsay is planning a move to Abasolo's native Miami; the couple will wed this summer. Words of Wisdom: "No one who looked like me had ever been represented in this role before," says Lindsay. "That's one reason I did the show, and I'm so proud I did. Never in my wildest dreams did I think it would actually work and I'd be getting married!"

Becca Kufrin, 29

Season 14 (2018)

Then: After a (very) public breakup with Bachelor star Arie Luyendyk Jr., Kufrin found a fiancé in medical sales rep Garrett Yrigoyen. Now: Engaged for a year, Yrigoyen and Kufrin live together in San Diego. Words of Wisdom: "I grew immensely from the show, and I realized that I didn't need to settle. I found someone perfectly compatible for me."

THE MULTITALENTED STAR OPENS UP ABOUT FATHERHOOD, FAME AND THE SECRET TO HAVING A HAPPY 23-YEAR MARRIAGE By MIA McNIECE

Song-and-Dance Man
Jackman at the Brit Awards in London on Feb. 20. After his upcoming world tour, he'll return to Broadway in a revival of The Music Man.

Spitting Image
Jackman and his Missing Link alter ego, Sir Lionel Frost (an explorer on the hunt for Sasquatch), at the film's April 7 premiere in New York City.

Hugh Jackman is famous for many things: acting, singing, dancing, hosting awards shows and getting (really) ripped. But while he loves it when fans call him Wolverine or sing a few bars from The Greatest Showman, the 50-year-old Aussie has a soft spot for a role he played in 2008: People's Sexiest Man Alive. "I am still giving out copies to everyone I meet," he says with a chuckle. "It's getting embarrassing." Which brings us to that other Jackman talent: self-deprecation. He may work harder than anyone in Hollywood, but he never takes himself too seriously. Lately he's been busier than ever, voicing an explorer in the animated movie Missing Link (out now) and headlining his first world tour, The Man. The Music. The Show, which launches in May. He's loving it all, but his happiest times are spent at home in New York with his wife, Deborra-Lee Furness, 63, and kids Oscar, 18, and Ava, 13. "Going to our country house, lighting a fire at night and roasting marshmallows is my favorite thing to do," he says. Jackman is grateful for a packed schedule—"The opportunities I'm getting now are better than I could have ever imagined"—but here's what he's really learned from his brilliant career.

A Man of Many Hats!

Nobody rocks a top hat like the star, who spent hours learning to flip one onto his head.

The Greatest Showman
As circus leader P.T. Barnum in the 2017 musical.

Les Misérables
With Isabelle Allen in the 2012 drama.

The Measure of Success Is Not the Paycheck

Fame and money were never the goal. I always wanted to keep learning and challenging myself to become a better actor. If you go in with the goal of loving what you do and continually learning and getting better at it, you're on the right path.

The Secret to a Lasting Marriage Is Honesty

Without a doubt, honesty is the most important thing. People talk about intimacy and assume that means in the bedroom. Of course it is that, but really, intimacy is being able to share everything together—good, bad, fears, successes. Deb and I had that from the beginning. We've always been completely ourselves with each other.

Parenting Evolves As Your Kids Do

Being a father has taught me so much. My son is about to leave high school, and my daughter is about to go into high school. It's amazing to just have conversations with them. But it took a bit of readjusting. It went from "Hey, guys, these are the rules, we don't do that" to having to give them reasons why. It's also nice to go to the movies and see something you both want to see. It's no longer "Oh good, let's watch Shrek for the 120th time." I mean, I love Shrek but not 120 times.

There Are Perks to Growing Older

I'm now more able to trust that everything is going to be okay and enjoy the whole process instead of breathing a sigh of relief when everything goes well. I'm also doing the things that I really, really want to do. There is a sort of freedom that comes at a certain point in your career—luckily I am enjoying all of that now. ●

FIGHTING TO SURVIVE

John in the hospital in 2015. "We would not let anyone speak negatively in front of him," says Joyce of when doctors felt he wouldn't live.

When John Smith arrived at the ER, frigid and without a pulse, even veteran doctors thought he didn't stand a chance. On Jan. 19, 2015, Smith, then 14, had been goofing around with two friends out on the frozen Lake Sainte Louise in St. Charles, Mo., when the ice gave way and all three boys fell through to the water below. While one friend scrambled out and the other was quickly rescued, Smith slipped under the surface of the water and sank to the bottom, where he remained for 15 minutes while first responders frantically tried to find him. After firefighters pulled out his body, paramedics and doctors at the nearby St. Joseph Hospital West performed CPR for 43 minutes, to no avail. "When John arrived by EMS, he was cold, lifeless," ER doctor Kent Sutterer said in 2015. "We immediately went to work, knowing that this is a grave situation…this is what we call in a lot of instances a 'practice case' because you don't expect any return to life."

But Smith did survive—making a full recovery that stunned medical staff and led his deeply religious family to credit the power of faith and prayer. Their experience inspired the new movie Breakthrough, starring This Is Us's Chrissy Metz as Smith's mom, Joyce. As Sutterer prepared to tell Joyce, now 68, that her son had died, she entered John's room and "walked up to the end of the bed and felt his feet, how cold and gray they were," she recalls. "I remembered in church all my life hearing this scripture that says, 'The Holy Spirit will raise Christ Jesus from the dead.'" Joyce began praying loudly over her son's body. "The minute I prayed 'Holy Spirit, please come and give me back my son!' his heartbeat started."

Smith was airlifted to Cardinal Glennon Children's Hospital in St. Louis, where he initially had multiple organ failure and hardly any sign of neurological function. But he walked out of the hospital on his own less than three weeks later with no brain damage. "It is very rare but not unheard of if the water is extremely cold," says Dr. Travis Stork, host of The Doctors, of how Smith was able to survive without a pulse for so long. "Extremely cold water slows the heartbeat and redistributes blood flow to the heart, lungs and brain—the vital organs that are most in need of blood and oxygen."

Today John believes in miracles. At a recent event to promote the movie, the 18-year-old stood on the shore of the same lake he fell through, smiling as the crowd cheered in celebration of his incredible story of survival. The people who helped him are now his extended family: first responders on the scene, doctors, peers from his high school, his pastor Jason Noble and fellow members of First Assembly Church in St. Peters, Mo. "I'm extremely blessed and happy to be alive," says the soft-spoken teen, who was adopted from Guatemala by Joyce, a homemaker, and dad Brian, 65, a retired journalist, when he was 5 months old after they had raised three sons between them.

Before the accident, "I had a lot of issues," John adds. "I was chasing after what I wanted instead of what God had for me."

Though he didn't suffer any permanent physical harm, John struggled to find meaning in his survival. "I had to deal with answering the question of 'Why me?' " he says. "After time and a lot of prayer and mentoring, I eventually saw that God is the only way to get through something like this." In the years since, John has traveled around the country to speak to young people and plans to attend a Christian college in the fall. He's also just a regular kid, a LeBron James fan who coaches youth basketball. "I'm a typical high schooler. I'm not always going to be perfect, I'm still going to screw up, but I definitely want to influence my generation."

The ordeal also shaped Joyce's perspective as a mom. "I've had to learn to let go," she says. "You learn that things like a messy room aren't that important because it could be an empty room. You learn to appreciate life and start looking at things that matter." Besides having her son back, Joyce is most grateful "for the love that seems to surround all of this," she adds. "The platform we have to tell people: Be happy for what you have; you don't know if you're going to have it tomorrow. Be thankful for it. And there's hope. There's always hope." ●

'WE'RE STRONGER TOGETHER'

This Is Us* star Chrissy Metz, who plays Joyce (with her on March 20), felt drawn to the film "especially at a time like this," she says. "Believing in miracles myself, I could just relate. We all want something to believe in, that we're stronger together than apart. That's what's sort of astounding about this story, the way that it's affecting people's lives no matter what you believe in. We all are looking for our purpose and our path in life."

The Evolution of DANY'S DRAGONS

Magic Eggs

In season 1, Daenerys thought this wedding present for her marriage to Khal Drogo was just a trio of petrified dragon eggs.

Surprise Birth

She walked into fire with the eggs and emerged with three hatchlings: Drogon, Rhaegal and Viserion.

First Fire

The dragons' power was put to use when Dany freed the slaves of Slaver's Bay.

Q & A with Lena Headey

The British actress, 45, plays Cersei, the scheming queen fans love to hate.

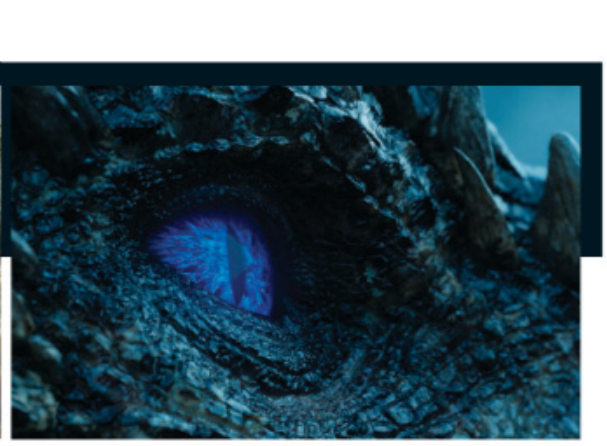

What's your favorite memory from 10 years working on the show?
I have many—it's impossible to pick one. Friendships and experiences. Getting to work with great actors, spending so much time together. It really is like a massive Addams family.

What was your last day of shooting like?
It was exciting and sad and overwhelming.

How has the show changed your life?
I've had two kids during Thrones, and suddenly being a face people recognize is really weird. Being a part of Thrones has undoubtedly brought more opportunity than I'd ever dreamt of. And being able to lend your voice to things that need it is a real privilege. [She's an advocate for the International Rescue Committee, which provides global humanitarian aid.] I am eternally grateful.

She Can Fly
When she was under attack in season 5, the Mother of Dragons escaped atop Drogon—her first dragon ride.

Cold as Ice
In a brutal season 7 twist, the Night King killed Viserion and resurrected him as a weapon of evil: an ice dragon.

Most SHOCKING MOMENTS

Ned Stark Loses His Head
When Thrones began, Sean Bean was the cast's most recognizable face; Ned's episode 9 death proved no character would ever be safe.

The Red Wedding
Even more Starks, including Catelyn (Michelle Fairley, right), were killed in this season 3 massacre.

The Mountain and the Viper
Oberyn Martell (Pedro Pascal) was winning his season 4 duel—until the Mountain (Hafþór Júlíus Björnsson) squished his skull with his bare hands.

The Commode Killing
In season 4, Tyrion Lannister (Peter Dinklage) used a crossbow to shoot his dear old dad, Tywin, while he was sitting on the toilet.

Jon Snow's Resurrection
Jon (Kit Harington) was stabbed to death in the season 5 finale—but a miracle happened in season 6.

WHAT I TOOK FROM SET

Cast members reveal the keepsakes they spirited away from Westeros

'I TOOK A LITTLE PIECE OF THE DOOR. IT BROKE OFF IN MY HAND, A LITTLE PIECE WITH FAKE SNOW ON IT, SO I KEPT IT. NOW I'VE GOT A PIECE OF THAT FOREVER.'
—Kristian Nairn (Hodor)

'ON MY LAST DAY, I RAN THROUGH THE SET AND GRABBED WHATEVER I COULD—A WOODEN SPOON, A STRAW BOWL AND A WOODEN TUB. KITCHEN UTENSILS.'
—Isaac Hempstead Wright (Bran Stark)

'I STOLE A PAIR OF WATERPROOF SOCKS, WHICH I FEEL LIKE I CAN NOW CONFESS. I [NEEDED THEM] FOR ANOTHER JOB, AND THEY DIDN'T HAVE THE BUDGET FOR THEM.'
—Hannah Murray (Gilly)

'I WANTED TO TAKE THE THIMBLE THAT SAM'S MOTHER GAVE HIM, BUT I'VE GOT A REAL PHOBIA OF GETTING INTO TROUBLE.'
—John Bradley (Samwell Tarly)

'I JUST HAVE SOME THERMAL UNDERPANTS.'
—Carice van Houten (Melisandre)

'I GOT TO KEEP A LOT OF MEMORIES. AND SOME CUTS AND BRUISES.'
—Maisie Williams (Arya Stark)

'I KEPT MY CORSET. AND FRIENDSHIPS THAT WILL LAST A LIFETIME.'
—Sophie Turner (Sansa Stark)

'I WAS GIVEN A LITTLE CHESS PIECE FROM THE MAP ROOM. IT LOOKS A LITTLE BIT LIKE AN UNSULLIED AND A LITTLE BIT PHALLIC.'
—Jacob Anderson (Grey Worm)

'I'VE TAKEN LOADS OF STUFF! I LIBERATED IT. SWORDS, MY LITTLE BAG. I GOT IN BEFORE THE LOCKDOWN. EBAY'S GOING TO BE ON FIRE IN A COUPLE MONTHS.'
—Liam Cunningham (Ser Davos Seaworth)

'I KEPT A COUPLE OF RINGS. SER JORAH HAD A DOTHRAKI ELEMENT TO HIS ATTIRE, AND THEY WERE EASILY TAKEABLE. SO I TOOK THEM.'
—Iain Glen (Ser Jorah Mormont)

'I DIDN'T TAKE ANYTHING. I WANTED THE BULL'S HEAD HELMET THAT GENDRY WAS FORGING IN SEASON 1, BUT I THINK THAT'S LONG GONE.'
—Joe Dempsie (Gendry)

THE SECRETS OF MY bold style

KIM KARDASHIAN WEST REFLECTS ON HER RISK-TAKING LOOKS—AND THE INFLUENCES BEHIND THEM—AS SHE LAUNCHES HER OWN SUNGLASSES LINE

By KAITLYN FREY

Whether she's breaking the Internet in risqué silhouettes or stepping out in Yeezy designs by husband Kanye, Kim Kardashian West has spent the past decade using clothing to communicate her unflappable confidence. "I have such an appreciation for fashion," says the Keeping Up with the Kardashians star, 38, who credits her trendsetting aesthetic to her stylish family—starting with her mom, Kris Jenner. "I remember going through her closet when I was 16 for prom. She had some amazing pieces—Alaïa, Versace, Chanel."

Kim's husband helped her learn about high fashion: "When I met Kanye, he brought me to Paris and introduced me to [designers] Riccardo Tisci and Alber Elbaz." Now she's using everything she's learned—and making it easier for fans to embrace her edgy vibe—by launching a line of under-$100 sunglasses that are both sexy and wearable. "I wanted to create something that wasn't out there yet but still have it be accessible," she says of her Carolina Lemke Kim Kardashian West Collection. Her ultimate fashion advice? "You just have to have fun!"

Kardashian West says she loves "the glamour of the '90s." So she turns to one of the decade's most popular designers, Manfred Thierry Mugler, for archival pieces—including the cutout gown she wore on Feb. 17 (left). "Everyone asked, 'How are you not going to pop out?' but it was tailored exactly to my body. I didn't even have to be taped in," she says. "I felt so confident."

Eye-Popping Vintage Prints

Nothing is too over-the-top for the mom, who seeks out striking patterns from past runways, such as a dollar-bill-covered trench and a striped see-through gown featuring lines wrapping around her navel (both below). Her favorite? "You can't go wrong with a leopard print," says Kardashian West, who turned heads in a figure-hugging catsuit on March 5 (right).

Naomi Campbell's Exact Looks

"Naomi is my forever fashion-and-glam muse," says Kardashian West, who has borrowed the styles worn by the supermodel. "She and I have talked and laughed that it's become a big deal!"

KIM'S NEW STATEMENT SHADES

Kardashian West is channeling her flair for retro looks into a new line of sunglasses she created with the European eyewear brand Carolina Lemke. "I loved designing these from start to finish," the star says of the seven styles in her first collection (she's also an investor), which includes colorful mirrored lenses and versatile sporty shapes. While her style tends to skew high fashion—with steep price tags to match—each piece is $90 (carolinalemke.com). "That was important to me," she says. "I love high-low dressing."

Shannon (with her dad and big brother Brandon in 1969 and, right, in March) says Bruce was always "full of energy."

Bruce Lee in 1973's Enter the Dragon. He died days before the film's release.

Bruce Lee's Daughter Shannon Lee My Dad's Legacy

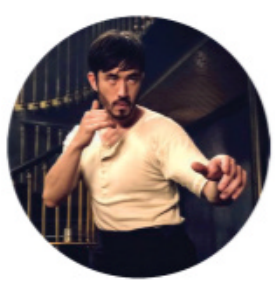

SHE LOST HER MOVIE-LEGEND FATHER FAR TOO SOON—AND HER BROTHER TOO. NOW SHE'S MAKING A FAMILY DREAM COME TRUE

Shannon Lee was just 4 years old when her father, martial-arts icon Bruce Lee, died in 1973 at age 32 from a cerebral edema (a swelling in the brain caused by excess fluid)—but she still feels a close connection to him. "When he focused his attention on you, it was like having the sun shine on you," she says. "That feeling has stayed with me my whole life."

Shannon, 50, has devoted herself to keeping her father's memory alive—as well as honoring her brother, actor Brandon Lee, who died in 1993 at age 28 after being shot by a faulty prop gun on the set of The Crow. As CEO of Bruce Lee Family Companies, which manages the star's legacy, she's now fulfilling her dad's dream for a TV series. The new Cinemax show Warrior, about a martial-arts prodigy, is based on a concept Bruce developed nearly 50 years ago. Shannon (whose mom, Linda Lee Cadwell, 74, wed Bruce after they met in college) says her dad "would be thrilled" his idea finally made it to the screen.

Bruce's Passion Project

Andrew Koji (below) plays a talented martial-arts prodigy in the new Cinemax show Warrior. The series, based on Bruce's original concept, takes place in 19th-century San Francisco during the violent Tong Wars. "The show delivers on action and has really great characters and historical relevance," says Shannon.

Raised in Hong Kong, Bruce moved to the U.S. at 18 and opened martial-arts studios before catching the eye of Hollywood. He played the sidekick in the 1966 TV show The Green Hornet before his breakthrough—and final—role in 1973's Enter the Dragon. In 1971 Bruce pitched Warner Bros. a show about a martial artist in the Old West—but the studio passed, saying American audiences weren't ready for an Asian lead. (A similar series, Kung Fu, soon hit the air starring David Carradine.) In 2014 Shannon got a call from Fast & Furious director Justin Lin, who asked to see Bruce's notes on the series. The two joined forces to create Warrior, which Shannon hopes will help more people discover Bruce's impact as a philosopher as well as a kung fu master. After her brother's death, "I was really struggling," Shannon says, "and I came across one quote my father wrote that said, 'The medicine for my suffering I had within me from the very beginning. Now I see that I will never find the light unless, like the candle, I am my own fuel.' That led me on a path of healing and has sustained me my whole life." —MIA McNIECE

‘We Have to Take Action’

Al Roker’s Climate Crusade

AN OUTSPOKEN ACTIVIST ON GLOBAL WARMING, THE TODAY WEATHERMAN HEADS TO ALASKA TO EXPOSE THE EFFECTS OF CLIMATE CHANGE

Man on a Mission
“We’re seeing the climate here changing more rapidly than anywhere else on the globe,” says Roker (outside Utqiagvik, Alaska, and, below, with climate scientist Victoria Hill).

Viewers are used to seeing the affable Al Roker in any number of lighthearted situations. But last week’s assignment took Today’s beloved weatherman on a more serious mission, to Alaska’s northernmost shore and a town called Utqiagvik—better known as ground zero for climate change. “Alaska is the canary in the coal mine when it comes to climate,” says Roker, 64, a longtime advocate in the fight against global warming. “It’s warming twice as fast as the rest of the world. We wanted to call attention to it because now, what happens in the Arctic doesn’t stay in the Arctic.”

Indeed, from catastrophic hurricanes to deadly floods and wildfires, the effects of global warming are making headlines around the country—and in Roker’s weather reports. “All of these things are climate,” he says. Consistently higher temperatures along the 1,000-mile stretch of Alaska’s northern shore have resulted in melting ice floes, sea surges that, in turn, contaminate local water supplies and coastal erosion that threatens to dislocate whole communities. “There are villages that are going to have to move,” says Roker. “These are Americans up here who are going to be the first climate-change refugees. This is real.”

As is Roker’s commitment to raising public awareness. “I’m a concerned citizen, and I’ve got a bully pulpit,” says the father of three, who practices what he preaches at home, where he’s building a backyard compost heap and gave family members reusable metal drinking straws at Christmas. “If we take action, we can make a difference.” —K.C. BAKER

Take a Tip from Our Editors

Recycle, repurpose and rethink the items in your rotation

Sarah Ball
market editor

BUY SECONDHAND FASHION

"I love going to my local thrift shop, but nowadays I don't even have to leave home to shop for gently used goods. An online shopping site launched in 2009, thredUP, carries thousands of like-new and consignment items conveniently categorized by price, size and more."

Colleen Kratofil
style writer-reporter

DONATE YOUR OLD CLOTHES

"I didn't know what to do with clothes that were too worn out to be donated. Then I discovered that all H&M stores have donation boxes where you can drop off any garment, and it will be reused, recycled and even resold depending on the condition."

Brittany Talarico
senior style editor

RECYCLE EMPTIES

"I wasn't sure how to discard beauty products that don't have clear recycling instructions, so I turned to social media. I got a lot of helpful info from eco media company Green Matters' Instagram feed, including that I could donate my old mascara wands to Appalachian Wildlife Refuge to help rehabilitate rescue animals."

Appalachian Wildlife Refuge uses the small bristles of clean mascara wands to groom animals.

Kaitlyn Frey
style & beauty assistant

RETHINK YOUR REGIMEN

"When I come across a product I don't love, instead of throwing it away, I get creative. If I'm not into a face moisturizer, I apply it on my hands. If a conditioner isn't doing the trick, I try to use it as a shaving cream. And I even have a text chain with my friends so we can swap products."

Jackie Fields
beauty editor

ASK FOR EMAIL RECEIPTS

"Let's be real: Receipts are often necessary, but these days most retailers will email you a copy. When you're checking out, if you don't want additional emails from the retailer, simply ask the cashier to decline that option. In my email account, I store the receipts in a folder, so that I can easily find and print only what I absolutely need."

BEAUTY RESPONSIBLY,™ Together

PEOPLE is committed to discovering—and telling the stories of—the sustainable practices that allow us to contribute to the greater good of the planet. This Earth Month, we're inspired by Garnier's work to make sustainability a top priority and to lead the change within the beauty industry, and are finding the ways we can make a difference in our own homes.

In the Kitchen

1. To conserve water, wait until your dishwasher is full before running it. Open the door when the cycle ends to let dishes air dry (and save electricity).
2. Ditch disposable straws—which often end up in our oceans—in favor of reusable metal or silicone options.

In the Bathroom

3. Recycle your beauty bottles: Text to get your free Garnier Recycling Bin and help keep empties out of landfills (see sidebar).
4. Opt for products that are formulated with sustainable ingredients and look for the TerraCycle® recycling logo on beauty essentials.

In the Garden

5. Run sprinklers on a timer and keep watering sessions short. Make sure taps are completely turned off and there are no leaks.
6. Use kitchen compost as a natural, nutrient-rich fertilizer for plants and flowers in your yard.

JOIN THE MOVEMENT TO BEAUTY RESPONSIBLY™

1.
Keep empties out of landfills: Text GARNIER to 52046 for a FREE Garnier Recycling Bin and a coupon for future purchase.

2.
Collect hair and skin care empties and send them to TerraCycle® free of charge. TerraCycle® recycles empties into new materials to be transformed into elements like lumber for community gardens across the country. Visit garnierusa.com/terracyle for info.

3.
Spread the word to friends and family about all the ways they can Beauty Responsibly™.

Mexican Poutine with Chicken

THESE LOADED FRENCH FRIES ARE THE CHEF'S 'PERSONAL FAVORITE' FROM HIS CRACK SHACK RESTAURANTS IN CALIFORNIA

- 2 small jalapeño chiles, unseeded and thinly sliced
- ¾ cup apple-cider vinegar
- ¼ cup granulated sugar
- ¼ cup water
- 2 tsp. kosher salt, divided
- 1 large poblano chile
- ¼ cup whole milk
- 2 Tbsp. heavy cream
- 4 oz. cheddar cheese, shredded (about 1 cup)
- 1 (32-oz.) pkg. frozen french fries
- 2 cups pulled rotisserie chicken
- 1 cup pico de gallo
- Fresh cilantro leaves

1. Place jalapeños in a small heatproof bowl. Bring vinegar, sugar, water and 1 teaspoon of the salt to a boil in a small saucepan over high heat. Pour mixture over jalapeños; let stand at room temperature 2 hours. Drain, discarding liquid; finely chop jalapeños, and set aside.
2. Blister poblano over a gas flame, turning occasionally, until charred on all sides, about 10 minutes. Place in a bowl, and cover with plastic wrap. Let stand 10 minutes. Remove and discard stem, skin, ribs and seeds. Coarsely chop poblano.
3. Bring milk and cream to a simmer in a small saucepan over medium heat. Remove from heat; gradually add cheese, whisking constantly, until melted and smooth. Stir in chopped jalapeños, chopped poblano and remaining 1 teaspoon salt. Cover and keep warm over low heat until ready to serve.
4. Cook french fries according to package directions. Arrange cooked french fries on a plate; spoon warm cheese mixture on top. Top with chicken and pico de gallo. Garnish with cilantro.

Quick Tip!
"If you cook your farro the day before and refrigerate it, this is a superfast dish to get on the table," says Tracy

TRACY, CORKY, LORI & DANA POLLAN

Vegetable-Fried Farro

THE POLLAN FAMILY—ACTRESS TRACY, HER MOM AND TWO SISTERS—SHARE A FRIED-RICE ALTERNATIVE FROM THEIR HEALTHY NEW COOKBOOK, MOSTLY PLANTS: 'FARRO IS ONE OF OUR FAVORITE GRAINS'

- 1½ cups uncooked farro
- 4 large eggs
- 3¼ tsp. low-sodium soy sauce, divided
- 2¼ tsp. toasted sesame oil, divided
- 5 tsp. peanut oil, divided
- 1 cup ¼-in.-thick sliced carrots (2 carrots)
- 2½ cups 1-inch broccoli florets (from 1 head)
- 1 cup frozen peas, thawed
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 1 tsp. grated fresh ginger
- 4 scallions, thinly sliced, green and white parts separated
- ½ tsp. kosher salt
- ½ tsp. rice vinegar
- Sriracha chile sauce or Asian chile-garlic sauce (optional)

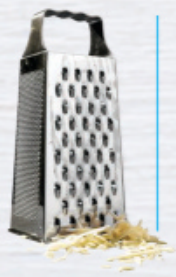

1. Prepare farro according to package directions. Drain; let cool 15 minutes.
2. Stir together eggs, ¼ teaspoon soy sauce and ¼ teaspoon sesame oil in a small bowl.
3. Heat 1 teaspoon peanut oil in a large nonstick skillet over medium high until shimmering. Add egg mixture to hot oil, and scramble until set, about 1 minute. Transfer eggs to a plate, and cut into bite-size pieces; set aside.
4. Wipe skillet clean; heat remaining 4 teaspoons peanut oil in skillet over medium high until shimmering. Add carrots; cover and cook, stirring occasionally, for 2 minutes. Add broccoli; cover and cook, stirring occasionally, until vegetables are fork-tender, 5 to 6 minutes. Stir in peas, garlic, ginger and scallion whites; cook, stirring often, about 2 minutes. Sprinkle with salt.
5. Using a wooden spoon, push the vegetables to sides of skillet, making a well in the center. Add cooked farro to the well, and gradually stir in vegetables. Cook until farro is warmed through, about 1 minute.
6. Add vinegar and remaining 3 teaspoons soy sauce and 2 teaspoons sesame oil. Add scrambled eggs, and stir to combine. Garnish with scallion greens. Serve with Sriracha, if desired.

FDA APPROVED. USE AS DIRECTED.

To merchants who have accepted Visa and Mastercard at any time from January 1, 2004 to January 25, 2019: Notice of a class action settlement of approximately $5.54-6.24 Billion.

Si desea leer este aviso en español, llámenos o visite nuestro sitio web, www.PaymentCardSettlement.com.

Notice of a class action settlement authorized by the U.S. District Court, Eastern District of New York.

This notice is authorized by the Court to inform you about an agreement to settle a class action lawsuit that may affect you. The lawsuit claims that Visa and Mastercard, separately, and together with certain banks, violated antitrust laws and caused merchants to pay excessive fees for accepting Visa and Mastercard credit and debit cards, including by:

- Agreeing to set, apply, and enforce rules about merchant fees (called default interchange fees);
- Limiting what merchants could do to encourage their customers to use other forms of payment; and
- Continuing that conduct after Visa and Mastercard changed their corporate structures.

The defendants say they have done nothing wrong. They say that their business practices are legal and the result of competition, and have benefitted merchants and consumers. The Court has not decided who is right because the parties agreed to a settlement. The Court has given preliminary approval to this settlement.

The Settlement

Under the settlement, Visa, Mastercard, and the bank defendants have agreed to provide approximately $6.24 billion in class settlement funds. Those funds are subject to a deduction to account for certain merchants that exclude themselves from the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class, but in no event will the deduction be greater than $700 million. The net class settlement fund will be used to pay valid claims of merchants that accepted Visa or Mastercard credit or debit cards at any time between January 1, 2004 and January 25, 2019.

This settlement creates the following Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class: All persons, businesses, and other entities that have accepted any Visa-Branded Cards and/or Mastercard-Branded Cards in the United States at any time from January 1, 2004 to January 25, 2019, except that the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class shall not include (a) the Dismissed Plaintiffs, (b) the United States government, (c) the named Defendants in this Action or their directors, officers, or members of their families, or (d) financial institutions that have issued Visa-Branded Cards or Mastercard-Branded Cards or acquired Visa-Branded Card transactions or Mastercard-Branded Card transactions at any time from January 1, 2004 to January 25, 2019. The Dismissed Plaintiffs are plaintiffs that previously settled and dismissed their own lawsuit against a Defendant, and entities related to those plaintiffs. If you are uncertain about whether you may be a Dismissed Plaintiff, you should call 1-800-625-6440 or visit www.PaymentCardSettlement.com for more information.

What Merchants will get from the Settlement

Every merchant in the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class that does not exclude itself from the class by the deadline described below and files a valid claim will get money from the class settlement fund. The value of each claim will be based on the actual or estimated interchange fees attributable to the merchant's Mastercard and Visa payment card transactions from January 1, 2004 to January 25, 2019.

Pro rata payments to merchants who file valid claims for a portion of the class settlement fund will be based on:

- The amount in the class settlement fund after the deductions described below,
- The deduction to account for certain merchants who exclude themselves from the class,
- Deductions for the cost of settlement administration and notice, applicable taxes on the settlement fund and any other related tax expenses, money awarded to the Rule 23(b)(3) Class Plaintiffs for their service on behalf of the Class, and attorneys' fees and expenses, all as approved by the Court, and
- The total dollar value of all valid claims filed.

Attorneys' fees and expenses and service awards for the Rule 23(b)(3) Class Plaintiffs: For work done through final approval of the settlement by the district court, Rule 23(b)(3) Class Counsel will ask the Court for attorneys' fees in an amount that is a reasonable proportion of the class settlement fund, not to exceed 10% of the class settlement fund, to compensate all of the lawyers and their law firms that have worked on the class case. For additional work to administer the settlement, distribute the funds, and litigate any appeals, Rule 23(b)(3) Class Counsel may seek reimbursement at their normal hourly rates. Rule 23(b)(3) Class Counsel will also request (i) an award of their litigation expenses (not including the administrative costs of settlement or notice), not to exceed $40 million and (ii) up to $250,000 per each of the eight Rule 23(b)(3) Class Plaintiffs in service awards for their efforts on behalf of the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class.

How to Ask for Payment

To receive payment, merchants must fill out a claim form. If the Court finally approves the settlement, and you do not exclude yourself from the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class, you will receive a claim form in the mail or by email. Or you may ask for one at: www.PaymentCardSettlement.com, or call: 1-800-625-6440.

Legal Rights and Options

Merchants who are included in this lawsuit have the legal rights and options explained below. You may:

- File a claim to ask for payment. Once you receive a claim form, you can submit it via mail or email, or may file it online at www.PaymentCardSettlement.com.
- Exclude yourself from the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class. If you exclude yourself, you can individually sue the Defendants on your own at your own expense, if you want to. If you exclude yourself, you will not get any money from this settlement. If you are a merchant and wish to exclude yourself, you must make a written request, place it in an envelope, and mail it with postage prepaid and postmarked no later than July 23, 2019, or send it by overnight delivery shown as sent by July 23, 2019, to Class Administrator, Payment Card Interchange Fee Settlement, P.O. Box 2530, Portland, OR 97208-2530. Your written request must be signed by a person authorized to do so and provide all of the following information: (1) the words "In re Payment Card Interchange Fee and Merchant Discount Antitrust Litigation," (2) your full name, address, telephone number, and taxpayer identification number, (3) the merchant that wishes to be excluded from the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class, and what position or authority you have to exclude the merchant, and (4) the business names, brand names, "doing business as" names, taxpayer identification number(s), and addresses of any stores or sales locations whose sales the merchant desires to be excluded. You also are requested to provide for each such business or brand name, if reasonably available: the legal name of any parent (if applicable), dates Visa or Mastercard card acceptance began (if after January 1, 2004) and ended (if prior to January 25, 2019), names of all banks that acquired the Visa or Mastercard card transactions, and acquiring merchant ID(s).

- Object to the settlement. The deadline to object is July 23, 2019. To learn how to object, visit www.PaymentCardSettlement.com or call 1-800-625-6440. Note: If you exclude yourself from the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class you cannot object to the settlement.

For more information about these rights and options, visit: www.PaymentCardSettlement.com.

If the Court Approves the Final Settlement

Members of the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class who do not exclude themselves by the deadline will be bound by the terms of this settlement, including the release of claims against the released parties provided in the settlement agreement, whether or not the members file a claim for payment.

The settlement will resolve and release claims by class members for monetary compensation or injunctive relief against Visa, Mastercard, or other defendants. The release bars the following claims:

- Claims based on conduct and rules that were alleged or raised in the litigation, or that could have been alleged or raised in the litigation relating to its subject matter. This includes any claims based on interchange fees, network fees, merchant discount fees, no-surcharge rules, no-discounting rules, honor-all-cards rules, and certain other conduct and rules. These claims are released if they already have accrued or accrue in the future up to five years following the court's approval of the settlement and the resolution of all appeals.
- Claims based on rules in the future that are substantially similar to – i.e., do not change substantively the nature of – the above-mentioned rules as they existed as of preliminary approval of the settlement. These claims based on future substantially similar rules are released if they accrue up to five years following the court's approval of the settlement and the resolution of all appeals.

The settlement's resolution and release of these claims is intended to be consistent with and no broader than federal law on the identical factual predicate doctrine.

The release does not extinguish the following claims:

- Claims based on conduct or rules that could not have been alleged or raised in the litigation.
- Claims based on future rules that are not substantially similar to rules that were or could have been alleged or raised in the litigation.
- Any claims that accrue more than five years after the court's approval of the settlement and the resolution of any appeals.

The release also will have the effect of extinguishing all similar or overlapping claims in any other actions, including but not limited to the claims asserted in a California state court class action brought on behalf of California citizen merchants and captioned Nuts for Candy v. Visa, Inc., et al., No. 17-01482 (San Mateo County Superior Court). Pursuant to an agreement between the parties in Nuts for Candy, subject to and upon final approval of the settlement of the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class, the plaintiff in Nuts for Candy will request that the California state court dismiss the Nuts for Candy action. Plaintiff's counsel in Nuts for Candy may seek an award in Nuts for Candy of attorneys' fees not to exceed $6,226,640.00 and expenses not to exceed $493,697.56. Any fees or expenses awarded in Nuts for Candy will be separately funded and will not reduce the settlement funds available to members of the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class.

The release does not bar the injunctive relief claims or the declaratory relief claims that are a predicate for the injunctive relief claims asserted in the pending proposed Rule 23(b)(2) class action captioned Barry's Cut Rate Stores, Inc., et. al. v. Visa, Inc., et al., MDL No. 1720, Docket No. 05-md-01720-MKB-JO ("Barry's"). Injunctive relief claims are claims to prohibit or require certain conduct. They do not include claims for payment of money, such as damages, restitution, or disgorgement. As to all such claims for declaratory or injunctive relief in Barry's, merchants will retain all rights pursuant to Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure which they have as a named representative plaintiff or absent class member in Barry's, except that merchants remaining in the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class will release their right to initiate a new and separate action for the period up to five (5) years following the court's approval of the settlement and the exhaustion of appeals.

The release also does not bar certain claims asserted in the class action captioned B&R Supermarket, Inc., et al. v. Visa, Inc., et al., No. 17-CV-02738 (E.D.N.Y.), or claims based on certain standard commercial disputes arising in the ordinary course of business.

For more information on the release, see the full mailed Notice to Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class Members and the settlement agreement at: www.PaymentCardSettlement.com.

The Court Hearing about this Settlement

On November 7, 2019, there will be a Court hearing to decide whether to approve the proposed settlement. The hearing also will address the Rule 23(b)(3) Class Counsel's requests for attorneys' fees and expenses, and awards for the Rule 23(b)(3) Class Plaintiffs for their representation of merchants in MDL 1720, which culminated in the settlement agreement. The hearing will take place at:

United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York
225 Cadman Plaza
Brooklyn, NY 11201

You do not have to go to the Court hearing or hire an attorney. But you can if you want to, at your own cost. The Court has appointed the law firms of Robins Kaplan LLP, Berger Montague PC, and Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd LLP as Rule 23(b)(3) Class Counsel to represent the Rule 23(b)(3) Settlement Class.

Topher Grace

THE ACTOR, 40, STARS IN THE NEW FAITH-BASED FILM BREAKTHROUGH

Last game I played
My wife [Ashley Hinshaw] and I have game nights, and we stumbled across Monopoly Empire, not related to the show. It only takes an hour! I'm not half as competitive as she is. I pretend like I let her win.

Last time I cried
I'm not easily moved to tears, but we had a kid [daughter Mabel Jane] a year and a half ago. Without getting into too much detail, there was crying involved—both hers and mine.

Last vice
For this podcast I'm doing [Minor Adventures with Topher Grace], Tony Hale and I got hypnotized. He wanted to eat less sweets; I wanted to stop looking at my cell phone so much. So far it says my usage is down, so that's good.

Last injury
Being up in the middle of the night when my daughter is crying and stubbing my toe. It adds insult to injury when you have to get up that early.

Last time I was starstruck
We were lucky to go to all the award ceremonies with BlacKkKlansman, so I got to see Glenn Close at all of them. I'm sure she'd tell you that we're not buddies, but I like to think that we are now.
